Preacher's Point

By Dan Schillinger

When Christians Sin

When we are baptized for the forgiveness of our sins (Acts 2:38), in order to be saved (1 Peter 3:21), God takes away every sin we have ever committed (Acts 22:16). He wipes our slate clean (1 Corinthians 6:11). He gives us a new beginning and we are begotten from on high as a child of God (John 3:3,5), born again, raised to walk in newness of life (Romans 6:3-4).

But after we have been baptized and God has taken away all of our sins, what do we do when we commit other sins? How do we get forgiveness of these sins? We find our answer in the Epistle of First John, which is addressed to people who are already Christians.

1 John 1:7 says, But if we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanses us from all sin. Here we are taught that we must be doing two things so that the blood of Jesus Christ will continue to cleanse us of all our sins: 1) We must walk in the light, that is we must be following God's word in the Bible, and 2) We must have fellowship one with another. But how can one do this if one is not regularly worshipping God in his church and working with other Christians? The original Greek word that is translated cleanses in this verse means that there is a continual cleansing going on. Herein lies the problem with those who have become unfaithful in their assembly to worship. Because they are not having fellowship one with another, they are no longer receiving forgiveness of their sins.

Then the next verse states, If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. (1 John 1:9). If faithful Christians repent and ask God to forgive them, he will. When we stand before the Lord on the Day of Judgment we will have no sins and we will be with him forever. It is so very comforting to know that we can be continually cleansed!

The Epistles: Learning to Think Contextually

Adapted from Fee & Stuart, How to Read the Bible for All Its Worth (3rd edition)

Studying the Literary Context: The Results

After taking notes on both the historical and literary contexts of our example passages from Philippians, this is what we find. The occasion is that Paul is in prison (1:7, 13, 16) and the Philippian church has sent a gift through a member named Epaphroditus (4:14-18). Apparently Epaphroditus became sick and the church heard of it and was saddened (2:25-30). But God spared him, so now Paul is sending him back (2:25-30) with this letter in order to (1) tell them how things are with him (1:12-26), (2) to thank them for their gift (4:10, 14-19), and, 3) to exhort them on a couple of matters: to live in harmony (1:27-2:17; 4:2, 3), and to avoid the judaizing heresy (3:1-4:1).

In 1:27 Paul has just completed the section telling them how he is getting along in his imprisonment. This new section is a part of the exhortation. Notice, for example, how he is no longer talking about himself as in verses 12-26. Did you notice this clear shift from I/me/my to you/your in verse 27?

What then is the point of each paragraph in this new section? The first paragraph, 1:27-30, begins the exhortation. The point seems to be what we read in verse 27-they should "stand firm in one Spirit." (NIV) This is an exhortation to unity, especially because they are facing opposition.

How does 2:1-4 relate to unity? First, he repeats the exhortation (vv. 1, 2, which now makes us sure we were right about the first paragraph). But the point now is that humility is the proper attitude in order for the believers to have unity.

Now you try it with 2:5-11. What is the point? Why does he cite this hymn about the humiliation and exaltation of Christ? Your answer should be something like this: Jesus in his incarnation and death is the supreme example of the humility Paul wants them to have. (You will notice that when you ask the questions this way, the point of the paragraph is not to teach us something new about Christ. He is appealing to these great truths about Christ, to get the Philippians to be like him, not simply to know about him).

Go on to 2:12, 13. Now, what's the point? This is clearly the conclusion. Notice the word therefore. Given Christ's example, they are now to obey Paul. In what? Surely in having unity, which also requires humility.

Finally, in 4:2, 3 Paul addresses two women and their helpers with imperative commands, which are also occurrences of the crucial first person petition verbs. These two, Euodia and Syntyche, were evidently very influential in the Philippian church, and they were not getting along. Their quarreling was no doubt adversely affecting the unity of the whole body there. Paul's petition verbs stress the importance of everyone working together for unity.
